On June 6, 2022, the Federal Court granted a motion to correct periods of eligibility for Rossville Day School in Manitoba, Quinte Mohawk Day School in Ontario, and Indian Cove/Pictou Landing in Nova Scotia. The new periods of eligibility for each school is as follows:

Rossville Day School

(added) June 30, 1967, to August 31, 1968

Quinte Mohawk Day School

(added) September 1, 1955, to August 31, 1960

(new) 1880 to June 30, 1958

Notice of these changes will be communicated to potentially impacted Survivor Class Members and Band Councils within the affected communities.

Class Members, who have already filed a Claim Form, and who may be impacted by these changes, will be contacted directly by the Claims Administrator.

Individuals who are now eligible to submit a claim for compensation as a result of the changes are encouraged to submit their Claim Form by July 13, 2022. By submitting a Claim Form, these individuals are releasing Canada from liability in return for compensation for the most severe harm they experienced while attending a Federal Indian Day School.

Applications for deadline extensions due to these changes are anticipated to be granted by the Exceptions Committee. Individuals who file a Claim Form, and who have attended the above listed Schools during the updated eligibility periods, will be giving up their right to sue Canada for harms/abuses experienced during that time. Claim Forms are available at www.indiandayschools.com.

Direct Claimant support is currently available through Class Counsel, namely Gowling WLG, at 1-844-539-3815 and the Indian Day School Claimant hotline at 1-888-221-2898, as well as through the existing Community Support Program, upon invitation by the community leadership
